THE MURDHRER USED A HAMMER. DEATH OF THE SECOND VICTIM-THE POLICE IN

A QUANDARY. rder of Mrs. Frieda Hoschnisky and her four rear-old son Israel, which occurred on Tuesday at their home on the third floor of the tenement-house No. 35 Moore st., is still wrapped in mystery. The box died in St. Catherine's Hospital at 2:30 o'clock yester day morning. He gained consciousness an hour behis death and called for his father, but again relapsed into insensibility. In this state he remained until his death. A post-mortem examination showed that the shall had been fractured in seven places. The weapon used by the murderer was without doubt a amer, as a piece of skull the shape of the head of a hammer was found among the clothes which had been beneath the mother's head after she had fallen

Yesterday Coroner Lindsay discharged all the occu pants of the house who were taken into custody on the night of the tragedy, including Samuel Cohen. Shortly after their discharge Marks Lenburg, a former boarder in the Boschnisky family, and Simon Feltman, who occupied the apartments in the rear of those occupied by the murdered woman, were again ar rested, on suspicion of knowing something more of the crime than they had told. Both the prisoners were put through a rigid examination, but it failed thrown any further light on the case,

There are many theories advanced as to the motive for the crime. The one most plausible is that the man was followed to this country five months ago by a former sweetheart, who had been with her all the her husband was in this country The fact that the windows were screened with a shawl during al ost the entire day of the murder is evidence that the obstructions were put there with the consent of oschnisky. This, together with the fact that the boy paid two visits to Mrs. Anna Braun's grocery store, at No. 31 Moore-st., three doors away, and bought an apple each time, add, materially to the According to the statement made by Mrs. Braun to the police yesterday, the boy in answer to her questions as to where he got his pennies, had replied, "There is a nice man in mamma's house, and he gave them to me."

The belief is that the woman and her murderer quarrelled while the boy was absent and he struck While she lay prostrated on the floor he completed his dastardly work and met the boy as he was about to escape coming into the rooms. It was then he struck the boy to avoid his identity being made known. The boy could not have more than entered the room when he received the blow, as he was found lying close against the door leading to the hallway. This fact clearly shows that the murderer escaped from the apactments by the door leading to Felhama's apartments, as he could not have left the rooms in any other way. Before making his escape, however, he removed the money which lay in an old pocketbook in the second drawer of the bureau. He must have known the money was there, but according to the story told by the husband of the murdered woman, no one except his wife knew of his savings. His wife carried the key of the bureau drawer, and it evidently had been taken from her after she had been killed. In his flight the nurderre carried off the key and the weapon with which he committed the crime. Several flebrews who were suspected of knowing something of the crime were required to take hold of the hand of the murdered woman and declare themselves honcent in accordance with a Hebrew custom, it being believed that the murderer would not make the declaration. All the men, however, made the statement. A clew to the murderer was found in the hands of the woman. A black hair was found between the thumb and forefinger of one hand and two bairs in the other hand. They are supposed to have been torn from the murderer's head. was found lying close against the door leading to the

OPENING AN ART EXHIBITION.

AMERICAN PAINTINGS AT THE UNION LEAGUE

The Union League Club of Brooklyn opened with a reception last night an exhibition of American pictures. The exhibition will remain open for the inspection of persons obtaining tickets from members to-day, Fri-

The club has aimed at making the exhibition ret resentative of American art, from its earliest to its latest phases. The collection, which includes nearly small group of actists known as the Hudson River school as it does to the larger groups of to-day. The later men will have no difficulty in drawing popular aste away from the examples of Kensett, Durand, The sincerity of those artists is unassailable out their dread of having anything unexplained led em into excesses of analysis; while they are sound n their perspective, and in the other commonplaces of art, their pictures have a dry, photographic charac-er, and lack the vitality which invests with interest ent works here that are defective in respect general effect, and the fresh, personal, suggestive style in the three marines lent by G. H. Bogart, for example, counterbalance the chromatic eccentricities which they contain. The clab has some excellent landscapes by Mesars. Tryon, Ranger, Boggs, Gay, Wyant and Inness, and a coast scene of quiet, impressive beauty by Mr. Minor.

Mr. Chase's well-known "Mother and Child" reappears among the figure pieces, and he sends also a richly colored still-life study. Mr. Bridgman's amiliar talent is illustrated in several of the brillians briental compositions which have lately occupied him, and in an early study, very delicately firshed, of a Western feminine type. Mr. Weeks has a picture of a procession of gayly robed natives entering an Indian mosque. There is skilfful work in the painting of the shadows thrown on the glaring white stone, fretted with geometric designs, of which the mosque is constructed. A study of a girl in classic costume by F. C. Jones is a graceful piece of drawing, but the beauty of the work lies in the sketchy indications of town and sky in the beakground. Leon Moran and J. H. Witt send paintings which make much of old-fashioned costumes, and Miss Maria Brooks has two interesting pictures of children.

One small room is given over to water colors, among them being landscapes by Angust Franzen and flower-pieces by Miss Matilda Brown and Miss Ablgall Tom-kins. A water color by H. Helmick, representing a party of Irish peacants gossiping over their task of plucking turkers, is one of the best painted and most humorous figure subjects in the exhibition. The club has no art gallery, so the pictures have been hung in a pleasant, unconventional fashion in different rooms. tamiliar talent is illustrated in several of the brilliant

MRS. PLATI ON THE STAND. SHE DENIES ALL THE ALLEGATIONS MADE

for divorce brought by William H. Platt against Mrs. Minnle La Tourette Platt, in the City Court, was the tefendant. She denied all the allegations made against her in connection with Martin E. Waller, son of the ex-Governor of Connecticut. She testified that she was married on March 11, 1885, and left her husband on May 5, 1891. The understanding was that she was to do as she pleased, and she lived with her mother for a time and then with her sister. In June she went to the Long Branch Hotel, at Fulton and Sands sts., and occupied Room No. 25.

Young Waller boarded there, but she did not know it when she went there, and her husband recommended the hotel to her. She had become acquainted with Waller on an elevated train. A Mrs. Nichols intro-He took her to Coney Island, and their duced them. He took her to Coney Island, and their pictures were inken at Erighton Beach. When asked how the picture showed the elephant at West Brighton in the background if it was taken at Brighton, she could not explain. She was never in Waller's room, she said, she was indignant when she saw Waller's name in the papers of the suit served upon her. She agreed if her husband would pay her 850 a month to let the case drift along and permit her husband to have his divorce. Ex-Governor Waller induced her to go to the house of Horace Graves, consel in the case, to see if it could not be settled.

Mrs. Euretta D. Fishor, mother of Mrs. Platt, gave evidence in her behalf. Further evidence for the plaintiff was given in regard to the spying upon Waller and Mrs. Platt at the Long Branch Hotel. A waiter testified that Mrs. Platt was known as Mrs. Waller at the house. He had carried breakfast to her and Waller.

DID HE KILL THE SOLDIER WHILE IN A FIT! at the barracks at Fort Hamilton, was given yesterday before Judge Charles L. Benedict. Dr. Charles Corey was the only witness. For ten years he was superintendent of the Eloomingdale Asylum for the Insane. He testified that Nelson was an epileptic. The history of his family showed it, for many of his ancestors were his family showed it, for many of his ancestors were epiletics, and the disease was hereditary. At the time Nelson fired the fatal shot, the witness said, he thought he was passing through a fit of cpliepsy and was unconscious and irresponsible from mental mania. He further testified that it was unsafe for Nelson to be at large, as he might have a violent epileptic fit at any time.

District-Attorney Johnson submitted the witness to a protracted cross-examination, putting hypothetical questions, but was unable to shake his evidence. An instance of a violatic who continued to play his instrument when unconscious and other examples were referred to by Dr. Cerey in his testimony.

NEWS FROM NEW-JERSEY.

SWINDLED THREE TIMES IN THE SAME WAY. Two more victims of "green-goods" men were disovered at the New-Jersey Central station yesterday y Detective Kilcauley. They were on their way to their home, Spartansburg, S. C., and said they were Michael C. Trisley and Garrison Peruth. One of the men had a box which was supposed to contain $20,000, out when opened its contents were discovered to be only $45 in bills and several rolls of green paper.

In telling their story the men said they had corre ponded with G. Watts, of No. 141 Mott-st. New-York and finally, upon instructions, had gone to the Coumbia House, No. 111 North Broad-st . Philadelphia, where they were met by a man named "Skipp."

where they were met by a man named "Shipp." The three then went to the Mott-st, place, where they met "Big Bill" and another man, with whom they transacted their business, paying $1,000 in good money for the box in which they supposed there was $20,000. These men have been swindled twice before this. In the other transactions the money was sent by express, but somehow it never reached them. This time to make sure they decided to take the nuckage with them. They saw the money placed in the hox and were certain it was there when they left New-York. Their disappointment was great when they learned that they were swindled. Superintendent smith sent the Carolinians over to superintendent Murray, of New-York.

The new building of the Paterson Savings Institution, partly completed at Main and Market sts., is by far the most imposing and costly business structure in the city. The fact that yesterday afternoon a workman lost his life by fulling through three of the floors, which gave way under him, accordingly caused excitement, as raising a doubt of the security of the hillthing's interior construction, and Coanty Physician Johnson has ordered an investigation. The interior of the structure is composed aimost allogether of arches made of three layers of thin tiles laid in Fortland cement, the convex surfaces of the tiles being filled in with a mixture of ashes. Nicholas Hollard, of No. 43 Lanest, was samping the wet ashes into the top of an arch on the fifth floor yesterday, when the arch gave way under him. His body and the debris struck the arch below, on the fourth floor, and that, too, went down with a crash, the man thus continuing his fall to the second floor, where he was picked up dead.
